Clayton Voters Approving Taxes And Bonds For Recreation Center

By Phil Sutin
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff
Voters approved two propositions on Tuesday that would give Clayton a new, highly visible civic asset — a 130,000-square-foot recreation center with two swimming pools, seven multipurpose courts, several exercise rooms and a teen center.

Voters elsewhere in the county approved school bond issues, annexations and billboard fees among various proposals.
To pay for the Clayton recreation center, voters approved a half-cent parks and storm-water sales tax that would provide $11 million for the facility. Voters in the Clayton School District approved a $19.5 million bond issue which included $5.5 million for the center. The district also is providing the land for the facility.

Clayton voters also approved a $1.9 million bond issue for making the high school's main building earthquake resistant and for other building improvements.

Clayton School Superintendent Don Senti said the center "is a joint effort. Neither one of us could do it alone. Together it got done."

Meanwhile, nearly two-thirds of the voters in the Bayless School District approved a $7 million bond issue.

Officials in the district said the bond issue will be a start for improving school buildings and upgrading academic programs. Superintendent James Sucharski said many academic improvements can't be implemented until leaking roofs are fixed and school buildings are modernized.

The state Board of Education in June will consider a staff recommendation to declare the district unaccredited. Sucharski said the bond issue will show that the district has community support for better schools.

Four out of five annexation proposals throughout the county passed.

Voters in Manchester and Sunset Hills backed annexation proposals.

Voters are allowing Manchester to annex an area bounded by the city, Hanna, Big Bend and Sulphur Springs roads. The city's population and area would grow by about 40 percent. The annexation would add 0.8 square miles and about 3,100 people to the city.

Similarly Sunset Hills is getting the go ahead to add an area bounded by Sappington Barracks and Sappington Roads, Interstate 270 and Gravois Road. The annexation would add 421.5 acres and about 1,300 people to the city.

Florissant will annex two areas despite the wishes of the residents in those areas. The areas are between the city, Hazelwood and the Missouri River; and a small tract that is home to the Kensington apartment complex.

Residents there voted against annexation but their votes were being overridden by voters in Florissant. Those annexations were conducted by a new procedure to deal with unincorporated pockets surrounded by municipalities or other counties.

Voters in the Wedgwood subdivisions east of Coldwater Creek and north of Lindbergh Boulevard also rejected by a wide margin Florissant's plans for annexation. The annexation would have added about 5,000 residents to the city.

But in Wedgwood's case, the proposal needed separate simple majorities from the city and the area proposed for annexation to pass.

In Bel-Ridge, Des Peres, Creve Coeur, and Town and Country, license fees for billboard were approved.

Use tax proposals were defeated in Bel-Ridge, Normandy, St. Ann and Wilbur Park, but won in Breckenridge Hills and Flordell Hills.

Voters in the Black Jack and Mid County fire protection districts turned down all but one of six tax proposals.
